If we take a quick glance at the major challenges India has, the lack of proper education would definitely make to the list. Now, again demarcating the country into urban and rural areas, it wouldn't be incorrect to state that the rural areas are worse affected by this malice. The allied challenges along with lack of proper education include the meagerness of access to study materials like books, acute shortage of teaching staff, gender discrimination while providing access to education, paucity of infrastructure etc. All these shortcomings could be countered with the help of technology.
